

Quick Tips: Advice from Grads

BASIC TIPS:

- Always continue to learn and push yourself outside of your comfort zone.
- Internships are important because they allow you to explore what different companies are like. They allow you to gain real world skills that are required in the workplace, and they can help you figure out if a particular career path is right for you.
- Be open to different career paths. Explore a variety of opportunities and take on work that's interesting and meaningful to you.
- Making connections can help you find mentors. Often times the people you connect with can help open doors for you and expose you to new career opportunities.
- Networking is critical! Build relationships with people you meet to help you advance your career journey.
- Communication in the workplace is important. Developing your communication skills can impact your ability to be a leader and to make an impact in the workplace.
- When it comes to social media, make sure you're showcasing yourself in the best professional light possible.

